TABLE OF CONTENTS

Page

CHAPTER ONE. Erasmus and his Humanistic Influence in the Church Policy 1- 29

The church ordinance of 1533. Antecedent influence suggesting a continuity, 1-5. The ordinance of 1533 and its interpretation, 5-10. The influence of Erasmus at the court of the Dukedom, 10-12. External collaboration of Erasmus, 12-16. Internal Erasmian influence, 16-20. The fate of the church ordinances in view of political developments. The possible Lutheran influence, 20-23. The notion of "justitia duplex" 23-24. The reign of Wilhelm and the Venlo treaty, 25-29.

CHAPTER TWO. Witzel and the Continuity of the Reform Policy 30- 86

Other reform of Witzel in the Reich at this period, 30-31. The presence of Witzel in Brandenburg, 31-32. Reform proposals at Fulda, 32-34. Evidence of Witzel in Strassburg and Lausitz, 34-39. The "articuli" of reform proposals in Notell, 1545-1556. Concerning schools, 39-41. Concerning parishes and doctrine, 41-43. Free will and original sin, 43-44. Instructions on prayer, 44-45. The sacrament of Baptism, 45-49. The sacrament of the Eucharist, 49-53. The Mass, 53-57. Fasting, 57-61. Sacrament of Penance, 61-67. Burial services, 68-71. Ceremonies and human constitutions, 71-74. Concerning prayers and song in the churches, 74-77. Concerning Christian discipline, 77-79. Clerical celibacy, 80-81. Concerning discipline of the people, 82-83. Concerning monasteries, 84-86.

CHAPTER THREE. The Influence of Cassander in the Dukedom, 1558-1566 87-108

Cassander and his relationship with Witzel, 87-89. The "Tractatus de Celebratione Missae", 90-99. The "Consultationes in causa reformationis", of 1564, 99-100. Concerning clerical celibacy, 100-103. Definition of the Church, 103-105. Concerning the ministers of the Church, 105-108. Conclusion, 108-111.

INDEX 112-118