TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE BY JEAN-PIERRE TORRELL, O.P. 7

INTRODUCTION 17
A Note on Terminology 30

1. THE CHRISTOLOGICAL SOURCES OF AQUINAS' THEOLOGY OF CHRIST'S HUMAN PASSIONS 35
A. Scriptural Sources 35
1. The Use of the Gospels in the Account of Christ's Passions 36
2. The Use of the Old Testament in Thomas' Account of Christ's Passions 39
3. The Synthesis of Revelation and Reason in Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Human Affectivity 44
B. Patristic Sources 47
1. Hilary of Poitiers and the Debate over the Psychosomatic Reality of Christ's Suffering and Pain 48
2. Augustine 51
a. The De civitate Dei 53
b. The De diversis Quaestionibus 83 55
3. John Damascene 58
a. The Impact of the De fide orthodoxa on Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Passions 58
b. Christ's Human Affectivity in the Thought of Damascene 60
4. Other Patristic auctoritates 66
C. The Pre-13th-Century Medieval and Scholastic Sources 71
1. The Early Medieval Sources: Bede and Alcuin 71
2. Hugh of St. Victor 73
3. The Sentences of Peter Lombard 76
a. The Impact of the Sentences on Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Passions 76
b. Christ's Human Affectivity in the Thought of Lombard 80
D. The 13th-Century Sources 88
1. The Commentaries on Lombard's Sentences 88
2. The Summa theologiae and Quaestiones disputatae 'antequam esset frater' of Alexander of Hales 89
3. The De incarnatione of Albert the Great 94
4. The Christological Writings of Bonaventure 96
E. Recapitulation and Conclusion 98

2. THE ANTHROPOLOGICAL SOURCES OF AQUINAS' THEOLOGY OF CHRIST'S HUMAN PASSIONS 101
A. The Treatise on the Passions (Summa theologiae I-II, qq. 22–48) 102
1. The Originality of the Treatise on the Passions 102
2. The Role of the Passions in the Proper Telos of Human Life 107
3. The Historical Achievement of the Treatise on the Passions 109
4. Damascene's De fide orthodoxa as the Methodological Source for Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Passions in the Summa 111
B. Aristotle 113
1. The Use of Aristotle in Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Human Affectivity 113
2. The Role of Aristotle in Thomas' Treatise on the Passions 116
3. Aquinas' Transformation of Aristotle's View on the Role of Passion in the Moral Life 119
C. John Damascene and Nemesius of Emesa 120
D. Albert the Great 123
E. Augustine 127
F. Others 128
1. Marginal Sources 128
2. Peter Lombard and the "Affective Spark to Sin" (fomes peccati) 130
3. Excluded Sources 132
G. Recapitulation and Conclusion 134

3. THE FOUNDATIONAL CHRISTOLOGICAL PRINCIPLES OF AQUINAS' THEOLOGY OF CHRIST'S PASSIONS 137
A. The Hypostatic Union and the Divine Dignity of Christ 137
B. The Full Integrity of the Humanity of Christ 141
1. A Matter of Faith 141
2. Aquinas' Anti-Docetism: The Full Realism of Christ's Human Nature 142
3. The Truth of Christ's Human Nature "in All Its Singular Parts": The Case of Christ's Male Sexuality 145
4. Aquinas' Anti-Monophysitism and His "Existential Christology" 150
5. The Instrumentality of Christ's Humanity and the Role of the Soteriological Principle 152
C. Christ's Absolute Sinlessness 157
1. A Matter of Faith 158
2. The Relationship between Christ's Sinlessness and His Human Affectivity 158
3. Christ's Metaphysical Human Consubstantiality 164

D. The Principle of Economy and Christ's Coassumed Defects and Perfections 166
1. The Principle of Economy and the coassumpta 166
2. The Tension between Christ's Coassumed Perfections and Defects in the Arena of His Human Affectivity 169
3. Christ's Coassumed Defects: His Passions 170
a. For Purposes of Expediency in Satisfaction 172
b. For Purposes of Credibility in the Incarnation 174
4. Christ's Coassumed Perfections: The Fullness of Grace 176
a. The Grace of Union 177
b. The Personal Grace 178
c. The Capital Grace 179
d. The Perfection of Grace as the Foundation for the Moral Quality of Christ's Life 180
E. The "Fittingness" (conveniens) of Christ's Human Weaknesses 181
1. The Argument of Fittingness in Aquinas' Christology 181
2. Understanding Christ's Passions as Fitting (or Optional) Features of the Incarnation 183
F. Recapitulation and Conclusion 188

4. THE ONTOLOGICAL REALISM OF THE INCARNATION: CHRIST'S POSSESSION OF A PASSIBLE SOUL 191
A. Christ's Sensate Human Nature 192
1. The "Animal" Side of Christ's Humanity: His Possession of a Sensitive Appetite 192
2. Christ's Possession of a Concupiscible and Irascible Appetite 199
B. The Passibility of the Human Soul 202
1. Passion as a Movement of the Sensitive Appetite 204
a. The Passions in General 204
b. The Specific Movements of the Sensitive Appetite: The Eleven Types of Passion 211
2. Passion as a Defect of the Soul 219
a. Affective Suffering Signifies the Proper Meaning of Passion 221
b. Passion as a Consequence of the Natural Corruptibility of the Body 225
c. Passion as a Consequence of Sin 227
C. The Passibility of Christ's Human Soul (Utrum anima Christi fuerit passibilis) 233
1. The Placement of the Treatise on Christ's Passions in the Structural Design of the Tertia Pars 236
2. The "Passion of the Body" (passio corporalis) in Christ 245
3. The "Passion of the Soul" (passio animalis) in Christ 252
D. Recapitulation and Conclusion 257

5. "THE PASSIONS WERE IN CHRIST OTHERWISE THAN IN US": THE MORAL QUALITY OF JESUS' HUMAN AFFECTIVITY 261
A. The Role of the Passions in the Moral Life 264
1. The Passions as the First Step towards Attaining Human Happiness 264
2. The Passions as the Proper "Matter" of Moral Virtue 267
3. The Commanding Role of Reason in the Moral Life 269
4. The Metaphysical Basis for the Role of the Passions in the Life of Virtue 271
5. Reason's "Limited" or "Political Rule" (principatus politicus) over the Sensitive Appetite 273
6. "Virtuous Passions": Moral Virtue Resides in the Sense Appetite 276
7. The Moral Neutrality of the Passions: Aquinas Replies to the Stoics 281
B. The Relationship Between Christ's Passions and His Virtue 286
1. Christ's Immunity to the Effects of Original Sin on Human Affectivity 288
a. The Theological Method of Aquinas 288
b. The Affective Integrity of Prelapsarian Man 291
c. The Consequences of Original Sin on Human Affectivity 294
d. "Christ Received Human Nature in the Purity that It Possessed in the State of Innocence" 301
e. Christ's Spontaneous Appetitive Inclinations: Voluntas ut natura and voluntas sensualitatis 309
2. Christ's Passions as Integral to His Consummate Virtue 317
3. The Soteriological Significance of Christ's Perfection in Virtue 324
a. The Need for Satisfaction 325
b. "In Order to Give Us an Example" 326
C. The Threefold Distinction in the Morality of Christ's Passions 333
1. The Object of Christ's Passions: Jesus' Affective Tendency to Lawful Sense Objects 334
2. The Principle of Christ's Passions: Jesus' Affective Movements Never Preceded the Judgment of Reason 335
a. Antecedent Passions and Consequent Passions 337
b. The Absence of the "Affective Spark to Sin" (fomes peccati) in Christ 342
c. Christ's Temptations 350
3. The Effects of Christ's Passions: Jesus' Affective Movements Never Impeded the Use of Reason 362
a. The Obscuring Influence of Passion 364
b. Christ's "Propassions" 366
D. Recapitulation and Conclusion 372

6. AQUINAS ON THE SPECIFIC PASSIONS OF CHRIST'S SOUL: THE CASE OF JESUS' SENSIBLE PAIN, SORROW, FEAR, WONDER, ANGER—AND THE VISIO DEI 375
A. Christ's Experience of Sensible Pain 380
1. Sensible Pain as a Passion of the Soul 380
2. The Christological Impact: The Reply to Hilary of Poitiers 384
B. Christ's Experience of Sorrow 388
1. The Human Passion of Sorrow 390
2. Utrum in Christo fuerit tristitia 394
C. Christ's Experience of Fear 403
1. The Human Passion of Fear 404
2. Utrum in Christo fuerit timor 408
D. Christ's Affective Experience of Wonder 414
1. Wonder or Amazement (admiratio) as a Passion of the Soul 416
2. Utrum in Christo fuerit admiratio 418
E. Christ's Experience of Anger 427
1. The Human Passion of Anger 429
2. Utrum in Christo fuerit ira 434
F. Christ's Passions and His Enjoyment of the Vision of God 441
G. Recapitulation and Conclusion 453

GENERAL CONCLUSION 457

BIBLIOGRAPHY 461
1. Primary Sources 461
2. Translations 466
3. Works on Aquinas' Theology of Christ's Human Affectivity 469
4. Works on Aquinas' Thought on General Human Affectivity 471
5. Complementary Works 477

INDEX OF THEMES AND PRINCIPAL TERMS 501

INDEX OF NAMES 507

ABBREVIATIONS 515